

Project Brief: Pinspirare

My father is creating a company named Pinspirare and has been looking for someone to make a website for it. The website's main focus is to inspire people individually through words of encouragement. The object is for individuals to provide their choice of a phrase or saying that they believe will inspire others. Their name will be directly linked with that phrase and a pin number will be associated with that phrase. The provider of those words can purchase a pin that shows the specific pin number.
